

Student life in Tokyo

08:15 Gingko trees

Many PEAK classes begin at 08:30 in the morning. My favorite part on the Komaba campus is the pedestrianized thoroughfare, which is lined with ancient ginkgo trees that love to flaunt their seasonal colors.

13:30 Classes

All PEAK courses are taught in English by an international faculty who are established scholars in their field. PEAK provides a vibrant culture for students from all over the world and this has made it possible for me to broaden my horizons.

15:00 Library

The state-of-the-art main library offers a treasure trove for reading and research. UTokyo's library system houses almost 10 million volumes and provides access to over 20,000 periodicals. The Komaba library alone provides 1,100 study spaces for students with free Wi-Fi access everywhere! Services for PEAK students are offered in English by the dedicated administrative staff. Life at university is full of amazing experiences!

17:00 Shibuya

PEAK is located at the Komaba campus of UTokyo. The Komaba neighborhood is quiet, safe and secure and an island of greenery. It is ideally located only five minutes by train and twenty minutes by foot to Shibuya, one of Tokyo's preeminent commercial and cultural areas, hundreds of theaters, museums, shops, restaurants, bars and parks! You can also use Japan's unrivalled transport network to explore other great cities, historic sites, pristine coastlines, majestic mountains and beautiful countryside. Tokyo is a dynamic, vibrant city – from where the world is your oyster!

19:00 Shibuya Station

This evening, I dined out with friends from UTokyo Global Interaction Friends. Many of them are Japanese and they help me with the language. We talk for hours and share experiences, or explore Tokyo together. Sometimes we go on overnight trips to discover Japan, too.

21:00 Student Dormitory

It is easy to get used to dorm life. I usually make dinner with my friends in the dorm and often hang out in each other's rooms and enjoy chatting about classes, extracurricular activities and life in general. As a PEAK student, I feel I can reach the summit of anything I try in the future thanks to all the great friends and faculty at UTokyo.
